The defective and dangerous condition aforementioned was unknown to the plaintiff and not readily observable to her but was known to the defendant and/or should have been discovered, remedied and/or prevented through the exercise of ordinary care and reasonable diligence on the part of the defendant and its agents.

On said occasion while on the premises of the defendant, the plaintiff, while shopping, came into contact with the slippery substance aforementioned at which time she slipped and was thrown violently to the floor, causing serious injuries to her person.
